Course Description

Title of Course:

Health 11 - Principles of Healthful Living (3 units)

Class Description:

This class provides the knowledge and principles of health that enables an individual to function optimally and adapt creatively on a daily basis in order to enhance the quality of one's life both now and in the future.

Course Objectives:

At the conclusion of the course, the student will be able to:

1. Demonstrate understanding of health principles, incorporating a wide variety of aspects from nutrition to disease prevention.
2. Demonstrate understanding of self-responsibility for personal health and wellness.
3. Understand the impact that personal behaviors and social trends have on an individual's health and risk for disease.

Student Learning Outcomes:

1. INFORMATION COMPETENCY

Students, after completing a course in the Health discipline will be able to demonstrate information competency by combining aspects of library literacy, research methods, and technological literacy. Evidence will be the ability to find, evaluate, use, and communicate information in a well – organized and well written paper.

2. GLOBAL AWARENESS

Students, after completing a course in the Health discipline will be able to demonstrate global perspectives by generating theoretical and pragmatic approaches to health and environmental issues. Evidence will be the ability to analyze global health issues from multiple perspectives, and be able to articulate an understanding of these interconnected issues by formulating appropriate responses and possible solutions to these issues.

Critical Analysis Assignment

You are required to find an article that describes a health-related research study by using the Internet. The purpose of this paper is to demonstrate your ability to find links to health websites, select an appropriate article, and critique or assess that article. Begin by completing the online Health Workshop tutorial or you may go to a “Health Workshop” at our campus library. If you decide to attend the on campus workshop, you must sign up for this workshop prior to the actual date of the workshop. Feel free to research and use any health website that might be of interest to you, just make sure the article discusses a research study that was conducted. Download the article and turn it in along with your typed critique.

The critique you are to turn in should be typed, one – two pages in length, and single- spaced. Grammar and spelling are important. Include a brief summary, in your own words, of the article (no more than 1 -2 paragraphs). The critique should also include, but is not limited to, what you thought of the article, why you chose the article, and how you may or may not use the information included in the article.

Below is a brief guideline for your paper and I will provide you with more specifics in the classroom:

1. Choose an article and briefly describe what your article is about.
2. Is the source credible and is it an appropriate website? Where does the information come from?
3. Why did you choose this article?
4. Comment on the “subjects” i.e. randomly chosen, number, control group, etc.?
5. Who is conducting the study?
6. What are they looking for?
7. Who is funding (paying for) the study? How might this affect the outcome of the study?
8. Comment on outcomes (results) and whether they are significant and/or valid. What implications do they have for the future?
9. Conclude with your opinion of the value of the study.
10. Attach a copy of the article.

Current Event Article (Extra Credit – 2 allowed)

Find an article of interest on any health related topic that you have found in a newspaper, magazine, or the internet. The article must be current within the last month. Assignments must be typed; spelling, grammar, and punctuation need to be correct. You need to turn in the article or a copy of the article with your summary. Materials cut from newspapers or magazines must be cut carefully and neatly and the entire article must be turned in with your summary.

The summary must be in your own words and should tell what the article is about. The length of your summary will depend upon the length of the article, but should be a minimum of 1 page. It must be in paragraph form and should include information about who, what, where, when, and why. Also, the paper must include your analysis of the importance or significance of this article.

Instead of an article, you may also attend a workshop or lecture that pertains to health and write a summary about the event. You may also use 1 movie that addresses a health issue instead of an article. If you are not sure about a movie please see me
