I. COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course is designed to provide students with an opportunity to explore common health problems and gain understanding of the promotion of personal health and prevention of illness. This course will focus on strategies to maintain or improve individual well-being by well placed emphasis on important health concepts. Students will also be provided with practical methods, which are applicable on daily basis as a guideline for self-directed and responsible healthy living. The comprehensive health course, which encompasses breakthrough findings of health care experts, is designed to deliver the following interrelated topics on the biological, social, and economic dimensions of health such as

- The Physiological, Psychological, Spiritual, Intellectual, Social, and Environmental Health
- Sexual and reproductive health
- The impact of heredity and lifestyle on health
- The effects of chemical substances on health
- The positive effects of fitness and nutrition on your well-being
- The impact of chronic diseases (Cardiovascular Disease, Cancer, Diabetes)
- The battle against infectious and chronic disease
- The Complementary and Alternative Medicine

II. COURSE OBJECTIVES:

1. To introduce students to interesting topics in general health and encourage them to incorporate the learned methods and acquired information to their daily life.
2. To provide students with the opportunity to learn how to adopt and maintain a healthy lifestyle.
3. To orient students that health is the most important commodity that they own, and are personally responsible to maintain it well.
4. To give students the best explanation on the importance of health “if you take care of your body, it will last you a life time”.
