Instructions for using MOODLE

http://moodle.lamission.edu

1. @ login area – click on “create new account”
2. Enter a user name and password - remember these!
   enter your email address – note: this must be an active address where you can receive the following email.
3. Log on to your email account. Look for an email from David Jordan and/or Los Angeles Mission College.
4. In the email test it will state “To confirm your new account, please go to this web address:”
   click on that link.
5. On the Moodle page – login using your username and password
6. In the center of the page, under “course categories” –
   click on Spring 2009 – On Campus (not Online Classes)
7. Click on this course: Human Anatomy – Prof. Gary Covitt
8. Enter the enrollment key – this will be given to you in class.

That’s it. In the future you will only have to go to the Moodle page and login, select the course.
Under Lecture notes – click on the chapter that you want to view. Print these notes and bring them to class. Later, some essay assignments will also be posted on this page.

My lecture notes are also available at:
www.lamission.edu/lifesciences

This is the web page for the Life Sciences Department.
You may find the lecture notes here, until you get set up with Moodle.
Click on Lecture Notes
click on your section # for this physiology class
Here you will find Lecture notes for the first few chapters. click on the chapter you want.
Print these and bring them to lecture. The remaining chapters will only be found on Moodle.