Hello everyone,

As we are now many weeks into the semester, I hope everyone's classes are going fine. Most if not all of the AJ classes are full. We are also continuing to assess our classes and programs. To help us accomplish this, we have purchased with CTE funds a handbook for college instructors on classroom assessment techniques. The handbook lists over 50 techniques from the very simple to the very complex. As the authors in the book state "Classroom Assessment helps individual college instructors obtain useful feedback on what, how much, and how well their students are learning. Faculty can then use this information to refocus their teaching to help students make their learning more efficient and more effective".

Over the next two weeks, I'll be meeting with everyone and providing them with a copy of the book and what we hope to accomplish with assessment over the next year. I had a chance to review the book over the summer and have already used a couple of the assessment techniques. The results were quick and surprising. See you soon.
